MEN OF AFFAIRS IN PORTSMOUTH

Brief Sketches of Their Lives, Which Should Be An Inspiration To All; Opportunities In Portsmouth for the Hard-Working, Conscientious Young Man Just As Good As Anywhere Else In The World.

Richard P. Seiler adopted the United States for his country in 1882 and Portsmouth for his home in 1899 and for the past 25 years has been engaged in the piano business here.

Born in Saxony, Germany, January 3, 1861, Richard P. Seiler came to this country in 1882 and settled in Baltimore, Maryland. After six years here he took out his naturalization papers in 1888 and the following year moved to Cincinnati where he taught piano, harp, violin and other string instruments at the West End School of Music for 10 years. In 1899 he came to Portsmouth and established his present business selling pianos and other musical instruments. Later Mr. Seiler discontinued the sale of the smaller instruments and devoted all his attention to pianos and piano-players. For some years he was located in the Turley building, but was forced to vacate his room on account of the fire which swept the building in November, 1923, and since that time has been established at 44 Chillicothe street.

Mr. Seiler is a member of the independent Order of Odd Fellows and Modern Woodmen of America. While living in Baltimore he was married to Miss Catherine Schmidt. They are the parents of two sons, Oscar and Albert, and one daughter, Louisa. (Mrs. Elmer Moritz) all of whom live in Portsmouth.

Mr. Seiler attributes his success to hard work, long hours, and constant attention to business. His word of advice to the young man starting on his business career would be "Always a little bit more than is expected by your employer all there is expected of you, and advancement will in you; don't shirk; always do follow."

Bootleggers In Michigan Given Protection, Says Witness

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Prohibition enforcement policies under the administration of Attorney General Daugherty outlined the main objective of the blundering investigating committee today, although short side excursions were taken into the mail fraud case in Boston and the Old Hickory Powder plant controversy in Tennessee.

After Bryce F. Armstrong, a Chicago prohibition agent had brought in a new string of charges about illicit brewing and protected bootlegging in the Illinois district, E. G. Yellowow, chief of the prohibition unit's general agents, was called to the stand and submitted one of the official records asked for by the committee. Adjournment was set until tomorrow before senators began their detailed examination of the witness.

The Old Hickory case was brought to the testimony by George W. Stock, department of justice accountant, who also declared the Dupont interests had the department to accept inadequate invoices of the property, but that confidential data gathered last summer as a basis for prosecution had been turned over to the DuPonts.

Stock also asserted that he had seen H. V. Green, of Boston, whose transactions were being investigated under the mail fraud law, that J. M. Daugherty served as his attorney before entering the courtroom, and that no federal prosecution in Boston, the witness said, although he favored one.

DEAD BODIES STREWN ABOUT; NATIVES DYING IN SQUALOR

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 8.—(By the Associated Press)—A reign of horror prevails in Tegucigalpa, the capital of Honduras, dead bodies being strewn on the outskirts of the city with natives actually dying in squalor, it was reported today in advices to the state department.

The paraphrase of the department's advice said:

"Conditions there are deplorable. There is a typhoid and dysentery epidemic. Bodies are strewn on the outskirts and no attempt is being made to inter or cremate them. The odor is nauseating."

"The food supply is becoming short and the prices for canned goods are exorbitant. Natives are actually dying from squalor."

The situation is liable to continue for some time, due to the attitude of the authorities.

Another revolutionary movement was reported to have been organized in the southern part of Honduras by Dionisio Gutierrez, former minister of war. Gutierrez is an advocate of Bonilla, candidate for president.

Orders Cavalry Sent To Scene Of Kentucky Disorders

FRANKFORT, KY., April 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Governor Fields today ordered a troop of cavalry to Straight Creek in Southeast Kentucky to reinforce the National Guardsmen already on duty in that disturbed coal mine area.

Decision to send the cavalry was made on a report from Adjutant General Kelso that miners and guardsmen had exchanged spirited rifle fire near the Liberty Coal and Coke Company mines which are being operated on a non-union basis. No casualties were reported.

The cavalry troop ordered out today is stationed at Frankfort. It is expected to reach Straight Creek tonight.

FRANKFORT, KY., April 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Indications are that another national guard unit may be sent to Straight Creek, Ky., heart of the mine war. Governor Fields, informed, the Associated Press before noon today, "Another unit is ready for instant movement," he said. Machine gun, infantry and cavalry units have been dispatched.

PIENEVILLE, KY., April 8.—(By the Associated Press)—Marksmen hidden in the hills and forming a semicircle around the homes of miners at Straight Creek, fired intermittently last night into their dwellings while men, women and children crawled on the floor until dawn today, according to a report made by Adjutant General Kelso. The rebels said they more than 2,000 shots were poured into the place and that almost every building in the village bore bullet holes from high power rifles from the varieties of bushes and trees high up on the mountains.

The first volley was directed at the mess hall and guard house at the mine hall and guard house of the National Guardsmen who have been on duty since Saturday. The fire was returned with rifles and machine guns and promptly answered by volleys from the besiegers. Presently the rebels began to raze the miners' houses with bullets. At intervals during the night their fire was concentrated on one section of the village and then on another. Guardsmen adopted similar tactics. The exchange of volleys continued until dawn when patrols were sent out but failed to find any trace of pro-letters.

The railroad workers, it is explained, who originally were to go into the Democratic primary, were suddenly urged to enter the Republican primaries in support of Senator La Follette.

Out of the total number of districts the Meadoo men claim they won at least five outright and that they have chance in the final tally of getting a sixth, and that out of a possible 20 delegates, they will have at least ten and maybe twelve.

There is, however, a significance in what the Wisconsin railroad men did. Heretofore, one of the principal arguments of the Meadoo campaign has been that their leader would cap-

U. S. Liner Gives Good Performance

NEWPORT NEWS, VA., April 8.—(By the Associated Press)—The United States Shipping Board liner Republic, on her official trial trip outside the Virginia Capes yesterday, is declared to have given a satisfactory performance and stood every test successfully. Reconditioning of the Republic, formerly the President Buchanan of the United States Lines, and originally the President Grant of the Hamburg-American Line, is being completed in dry dock here.

Admiral W. S. Benson and other members of the shipping board were on the Republic during the trial trip. At her maximum, Admiral Benson said, the ship made a little better than 15 knots and in the right hour run averaged 14.55 knots, considerably better than she made under her previous runs.

The Republic, Admiral Benson stated, will rank next to the Leviathan in her appointments. She is scheduled to resume trans-Atlantic service in June.

William G. Simpson, the third candidate on the Republican ballot, was a hopeless third with 5,036 votes.

The more populous centers—Detroit,

Staiger's $25,000 Damage Suit Brought Against Former Card Man Being Heard

Days before the big "drought," which came to the United States in 1919, when the Volstead law became effective, were recalled during the hearing of the suit of John P. "Shump" Staiger against William Lemons, former "card" prohibition inspector, and his bond, Indemnity Insurance company of North America, which got under way before Judge Thomas and a jury in Common Pleas court Tuesday morning.

Staiger is demanding $25,000 damages for alleged malicious and wanton prosecution, libel and trespassing as the result of a raid staged by the dry officer on plaintiff's home at 1113 Eighth street on November 3, 1923, by authority of a search warrant issued from the court of W. E. Newberry, then mayor of New Boston, based on an affidavit sworn out by Lemons in his official capacity, containing alleged false, defamatory and malicious matter of and concerning plaintiff.

The jury which is hearing the case is composed of one woman and eleven men, as follows: Mrs. Howard Williamson, and John Dever, James Pyles, H. B. Murray, Albert Richards, Irvin D. Leetom, John R. Lynn, George Mault, William Haselman, Harry Baker, H. C. Huffman and Walter Norris.

The evidence was rather brief and the plaintiff rested his case shortly before the noon hour, when the defense started on its inuing of introducing testimony. From indications the evidence will be all in and the arguments of counsel concluded late this afternoon when Judge Thomas will send the case to the jury.

W. E. Newberry, former mayor of New Boston, was the first witness and he identified the original papers, including the affidavit, search warrant, return of warrant and final entry of dismissal, involved in connection with the search of the Staiger home.

Mrs. John P. Staiger, wife of plaintiff, told of the visit of Lemons and his two assistants to her home on the afternoon and of their search of the premises. She stated that the officers boldly brushed her aside and entered the house when she opened the door in response to their knock, declaring that Lemons talked to her in a gruff voice during the search, at the conclusion of which they left, after satisfying themselves no liquor was there.

The plaintiff, on being called to the stand, described his home, a five-room cottage at the Eighth street address, which he declared had never during his nine years' living there been used for the sale or manufacture of liquor, and further asserted that no liquor had unlawfully been kept there, although he admitted having put away some private stock when the country went dry, only to discover later that the supply was not sufficient to last a few years. Instead of the rest of his life as he had counted. When asked by Attorney Thompson what happened to his private stock, Staiger replied, "It evaporated the same as your supply."

Staiger identified a copy of The Morning Sun of the date of November 4 containing a news item describing the raid and search of his home by the defendant and it was offered as an exhibit in the case. The witness in reply to a question from Attorney Searl declared that allegations of the Lemons affidavit became generally known through the comment made by the local newspapers, causing him disgraceful notoriety, shame and embarrassment by casting a suspicion that he was a bootlegger and handling illicit liquor and asserted had been damaged in many other ways by authority of a "card" issued to him by State Prohibition Commissioner McDonald, and that while he read the books given him, instructing him in his duties, admitted that he was not entirely advised as to the law and the scope of his authority, stating that it was his understanding that he had a right to search private dwellings with a search warrant and public places without warrant. He admitted picking up a couple of men, one of whom was J. K. Routt, to assist him in making the search at the Staiger home and declared he swore out the warrant procured on information obtained from various sources but he was unable to say from whom he had secured the information on which the affidavit was based.

The witness claimed that he was told after the raid by unknown persons that the search at the Staiger home was not made at the right time. Lemons testified that he received no salary or regular pay from the state as inspector and that the only remuneration he received while serving in that capacity was in the way of costs.

On cross-examination Staiger admitted that he was engaged in the liquor business before the coming of prohibition and as manager of a brewery branch and Attorney Thompson sought to show that the witness had made his campaign for representative on a "light wine and beer" platform and that he advertised his saloon business in the newspapers when engaged in dispensing liquor, but the evidence was ruled out as immaterial.

Lemons, the defendant, on being called for cross-examination, stated that he lived at 707 Findlay street and is now employed at the Selby shoe factory. He said that he was appointed a temporary prohibition inspector on October 27, 1923, under authority of a "card" issued to him by State Prohibition Commissioner McDonald, and that while he read the books given him, instructing him in his duties, admitted that he was not entirely advised as to the law and the scope of his authority, stating that it was his understanding that he had a right to search private dwellings with a search warrant and public places without warrant. He admitted picking up a couple of men, one of whom was J. K. Routt, to assist him in making the search at the Staiger home and declared he swore out the warrant procured on information obtained from various sources but he was unable to say from whom he had secured the information on which the affidavit was based.

The witness claimed that he was told after the raid by unknown persons that the search at the Staiger home was not made at the right time. Lemons testified that he received no salary or regular pay from the state as inspector and that the only remuneration he received while serving in that capacity was in the way of costs.

Runaway Lad Located At Home of McDermott Relative

While police and members of his family were searching the city yesterday for James Armstrong, twelve year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Armstrong, 2020 Seventh street, who had been missing since early Monday morning, James was off on a pleasant spring vagabondage. He spent the night with his uncle, Major O'Dell at McDermott. He told his relatives that his family knew where he was.

It was not until Mr. O'Dell read of the lad's disappearance in the Morning Sun that he realized that he was harboring a runaway, and notified the boy's parents. James is a pupil at the Union street school and when he did not return home after school hours his mother gone in communication with his teacher and found that the boy had not been in classes that day. Further investigation elicited the information from the corner grocer that James had purchased a loaf of bread and a pound of minced ham. The family felt then that he had decided to yield to the spring call of the road, but some anxiety was felt concerning his safety. The Armstrong family left for McDermott this morning.

five per cent of which would go out as interest and the remaining one per cent into a sinking fund, insuring repayment thirty-seven years after the fourth year.

The bonds, to be handed to the reparation commission would yield $60,000,000 gold marks annually after the fourth year. The commission would be allowed to offer its bonds on the international markets and thus rapidly realize some 10,000,000,000 gold marks.

In connection with the mortgage on industries, the report, says the newspaper, points out that the German industries have been able, owing to the collapse of the mark, to free themselves almost for settling of their mortgages and other indebtedness, so the experts decided to take advantage of this situation to settle the reparation treasury.

The plan provides for issuance of bonds to the value of $6,000,000,000 gold marks secured on the industrial property to be handed over to the reparation commission. These bonds would yield $600,000,000 gold marks for forty years with five per cent interest and one per cent to the sinking fund.

Industries failing to settle their share of interest would be liable to seizure. At the same time, the German government would be held responsible for payment, the reparation committee being entitled to make good any deficiency in payment by seizing taxes due the Reich.

The experts, Le Martin says, consider the problem of how Germany can transfer such large sums abroad without upsetting the international financial market, a more difficult than establishing how much and in what manner she should pay.

After a long study they suggest the creation of a permanent committee of five commissioners, each being a specialist, with a president appointed by the reparation commission and accepted by the governments to direct this complicated operation.

Coolidge

the state, however, is the race between Governor Levi Small and Thaddeus G. Ellington, state senator, for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, which has developed possibly the bitterest factional struggle in the state's history. A heavy vote is expected.

William G. McAdoo, unopposed for the Democratic presidential preference, is indirectly involved in the sharpest division in the Democratic ranks in recent years. A full slate of avowed McAdoo delegates is opposed by a solid array of non-preference delegates openly pledged to the leadership of George E. Brennan, state Democratic chief. McDowell McCormick, United States senator, is opposed for re-nomination by four candidates, but his campaign took especial note of former Governor Charles S. Denen and Newton Jenkins, candidate of the La Follette bloc in Washington.

Five candidates, four of them openly battling against the "regulars" seek the Democratic nomination for governor. Light wine and beer has complicated the contest by injection of a second important issue for the voters.

Primary In Omaha

OMAHA, NEB., April 8.—(By the Associated Press)—President Coolidge and Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, in a state-wide primary today are seeking Nebraska's endorsement for the Republican presidential nomination and the nineteen delegates to the national convention. The name of no Democratic candidate for presidential preference appears on the ballot but blue-blooded names have been left for voters to write in names.

Second in interest only to the Coolidge-Johnson contest is the fight between Senator George W. Norris, chairman of the senate agricultural committee and Charles S. Stone, former congressman for the Republican senatorial nomination.

Norris, an independent Republican, refused to come to Nebraska for the campaign declaring that to do so he would have to neglect his duty in Washington. Mr. Sloan regarded as an administration man was said to have had the backing of the regular Republicans.

Democratic voters are bollocking for John J. Thomas, of Seward; Prentiss Cone, of Omaha; Kenneth W. McDonald, of Bridgeport, and D. C. Patterson, of Omaha, for their senatorial choice, while for the gubernatorial nomination, Governor Charles W. Bryan and Charles Graff, president of the state board of agriculture, are their candidates.

George W. Sterling, of Omaha, who favors a referendum on light wines and beer, Albert N. Mathers, banker and farmer of Gering; C. H. Gustafson, of Lincoln, former head of the United States Grain Growers Inc., and W. E. Steecker, of Omaha, seek the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

McAdoo forces are fighting hard for a victory in the Illinois primaries on April 8th. George Brennan has a slate of "unfrustrated" delegates and the McAdoo men are not very hopeful of getting better than a few delegates in the down state districts. McAdoo is not entered in Nebraska out of deference to Governor Charles Bryan but the delegation that will go to the convention is expected to swing to McAdoo after the first few ballots.

The fight being waged by the McAdoo forces in nearly every state where the old organization men have been in control is very much like that which preceded the Baltimore convention in 1912. It begins to look more and more as if the struggle will ostensibly in favor of individuals is really a fundamental controversy as between the organization "bosses" and the so-called progressives, which, however, is only another way of referring in most cases to the Wilson and anti-Wilson wings in the Democratic party.

Pay Tribute To Americans

TIRANA, ALBANIA, April 8.—(By the Associated Press)—All the shops were closed today out of respect to Robert Lewis Coleman and George D. Long, Americans slain by bandits on the road between Shkodra and the capital, Sunday. The car transporting the bodies of the victims was halted upon its arrival by a crowd, including many notables. The funeral assembly suspended its session for half an hour as a mark of respect and held a popular manifestation of sympathy before the American consulate.

Local Car In Accident

IRONTON, Ohio, April 8.—Two automobiles met at the corner of Sixth and Pleasant streets Sunday afternoon and both were damaged considerably, but the drivers were uninjured.

One of the cars, a Maxwell sport, driven by Will Kotke, of West Irionton, was coming out Pleasant from Fifth, while the other, a Chevrolet, driven by a Mr. Dillon, of Portsmouth, was going north on Sixth street. Neither of the drivers noticed the other's approach until too late to avert a collision. The machines ploughed into each other head-on.

Wreck Auto, Fined

GREENUP, KY., April 8.—Sheriff Callahan placed William and Langdon Maynard, of Oliver, Ky., under arrest on charge of drunkenness. These brothers had wrecked their Ford at the race track when Sheriff Callahan happened along. They were brought to Greenup and fined $50 and costs each.

Two Arrested At Greenup

GREENUP, KY., April 8.—Rufus Tackett, of Culp Creek, is boarding for a few days with Jester Darby, having taken up his residence after being arrested for transporting a littleshine and being drunk in a public place. He will be given an examining trial at an early date. Harry Crump, of Clay Lick, will keep Mr. Tackett company, he being arrested on a charge of drunkenness.

SUSPECT CONFESSES HE ATTACKED WMAON

LAWRENCEBURG, IND., April 8.—Alexander C. Bailey, 40, laborer, held here in connection with the attempted assault and robbery of Mrs. Mary Bartholemew, 70, Sunday night, confessed to Sheriff Frank G. Winter. Bailey said he had hid in the house until Mrs. Bartholemew prepared for bed when he attacked her. He did not assign any reason for his actions.

Tense feeling aroused by the attack on Mrs. Bartholemew had abated somewhat today, and Sheriff Winter declared he did not believe any attempt would be made to molest Bailey.

The attack on Mrs. Bartholemew occurred late last night. She is said to be in a serious condition.

Rickey Trial April 14

MONROE, Mich., April 8.—The docket for the April term of court was arranged here Monday. The jury will report April 11, and the first case is that of Herman Sakloff, 24, of Brooklyn, charged with murder in connection with the killing of Molar Patient Oscar J. Reinhardt at Monroe. This trial will probably consume two days.

The case against Frank W. Rickey, federal prohibition agent, of Portmouth, O., charged with murder probably will be the second tried.

Attorney William F. Haas, representing Rickey, expects him here Saturday to make arrangements for trial. Rickey, it is charged, fired a revolver shot during a raid at the home of Sam Kalb, during which, it is alleged, Kalb's son, Phillip, was killed.

Judge Besso H. Root will preside at the Rickey trial.

You can't measure the Haynes by a picture; that does not show rich beauty of finish nor the impressive proportion. You can't measure the Haynes in a display room, for there it is standing still.

You must get out on the road in a Haynes—feel its power, feel how easily it rides, how perfectly it is balanced, how smoothly it glides from 2 to 60 miles an hour, how easy it is to control—then you begin to know the Haynes—and to love it. You'll know why Haynes owners call this "The Par Car."

Miss Dolly Wise

She is here to answer any and all questions concerning love, marriage, trouble, woes, etiquette, etc. Inquiries should be addressed to Miss Dolly Wise, care The Daily Times, Portsmouth, Ohio.

Dear Dolly: I am a young girl and am going with a boy of 20. I have a girl friend who I write to him every chance she gets. She always hangs after us every place we go. Dolly, I just feel like telling her that she is not as welcome as the flowers in May. Don't you think that she has had her say? I could get lots of other boys, but I just want this one. The girl I have in mind has a smile for every one and a heart for none. She is a flirt and I believe if I could get rid of her I would be better off and much happier. There is another girl as jealous as I am, if she continues to act as she has been in the past I shall die broken-hearted! Please tell me what length to wear my dresses. And I am 18 years of age. Dear Dolly: I have been wanting to have my hair bobbed but my parents do not want me to. Would you have it bobbed without their consent? Should a girl give a boy a kiss? Is there no one to tell me what length to wear my dresses. And I am 18 years of age. Dear Dolly: I have been wanting to have my hair bobbed but my parents do not want me to. Would you have it bobbed without their consent? Should a girl give a boy a kiss? Is there no one to tell me what length to wear my dresses. And I am 18 years of age. Dear Dolly: I have a sister of 14 and she wants to go with him, but I did not tell any one. In a day or two he told another girl to ask me for a date. I did not give her an answer so he used for himself. Dolly, I told my mother did not like for me to keep company. Did I do right by telling him that? I like him all right but think it best to wait a year or two before going with the boys. If he cares nothing about me I think he will wait, don't you? I have seen him with girls since but he does not keep steady company with any of them. Dolly, you may think my letter foolish but I am a poor girl and have to work for a living so please answer it for me.

OPPRESSED GIRL.
I don't think your letter foolish—in fact I think you are quite sensible for a girl of your age when a good looking young man cannot tempt you to make up with him. You are wise to wait a few years before beginning to keep company with the boys. You are not the only girl who has to work for a living, so don't let a little

If the girl you have in mind is the kind who has "a smile for everyone and a heart for none" she is harmless, even if she is having a good time at your expense. If you don't want her with you, slip off without her or get some other man to be around. There are lots of ways you can get rid of her if you are clever enough to get by with them. If your parents don't want you to have your hair bobbed don't bob it. Dresses are quite short this spring, and you might make yours anywhere from eight to twelve inches from the ground. I would advise you to give your friend an expensive gift, but it would be all right to give some little remembrance for his birthday since he told you he was going to have one soon.

DEAR DOLLY: We are planning on a trip to Niagara Falls for a week this fall. Could you tell us about what the expenses would be for two from here?

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES — THE MAGIC TUBE

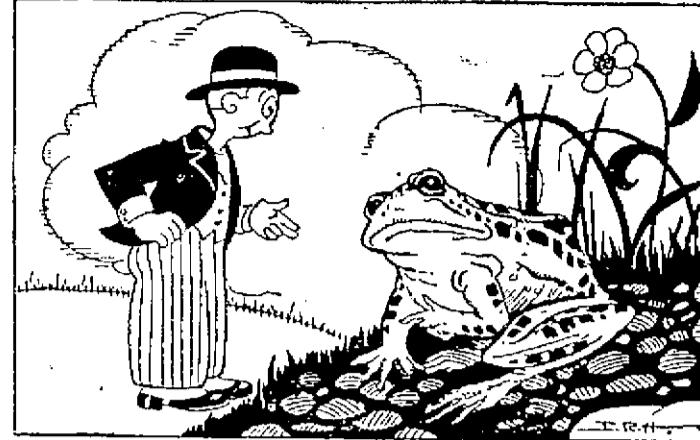

Jack immediately stuck out his hand and the glove took hold of it. A heavy shake released its hold and swing out of Jack's hand. As Jack started to hear Flip bark and, looking back, he saw another glove was patting Flip on the back and rubbing his nose.

"It won't hurt you," said the little adventurer. And then the rubber glove tickled Flip in the side and the dog jumped out of the way in a hurry. Jack then continued on his way. After a short time he heard the tube faintly say, "Put some more air in me, I'm getting flat."

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS by Olive Roberts Barton

THE DISSATISFIED FROG

"What do you want to do, Mister Discontent?"

"Oh, dear!" croaked the green frog, puffing out his cotton sides until hisigue-pink skin nearly burst. "I do wish something would happen! They call this place Doofunny Land, but nobody ever does anything and it's never funny!"

"What do you want to do, Mister Discontent?" asked Hinky Dinky between neds, for his head never stopped its bobbing up and down night or day.

"Humph!" croaked the green frog. "It's all right for you to call me Mister Discontent, for you can be happy anywhere. You weren't made to swim and sit in the sun on a wet log, and catch flies, and watch the moon and fireflies on summer nights."

"Well, neither were you, dear sir," nodded Hinky Dinky. "Your first swim would be your last. Your fine green tissue-paper skin would peel off you like the outside of a boiled beet, and your white cotton flesh would get your wire toes would get rusty and iron..."

"Oh, stop, stop!" croaked the frog. "Please call me a croaker, but what are you, Mister Hinky Dinky? I never heard such dismal words in all my life."

"There! There!" cried the little man. "I only meant it kindly. I just wanted to show you that you are better off as we are."

"I do try," croaked the frog, "but one day I fell out of the window and I saw how real frogs live. Happy was no name! They dived and splashed and swam races and played leap-frog, and all I could do was to sit there and watch. That was when I decided to run away, and so I came to Doofunny Land."

Playing House

IT'S like playing house to a mother whose children are robust and healthy. She escapes the greatest worries of parenthood. Her thriving youngsters are a joy.

Nourishing, energizing food is largely the secret of a child's ruddy health. And every mother should know the elements in food which create energy and build strength. The food element, Dextrose, for example, is one of Nature's most important gifts. It supplies the "fuel" of the body and puts vitality into the blood and tissue cells.

A large percentage of Dextrose is contained in delicious Karo. It is this that makes Karo such a wonderful food for growing children. Serve them all the Karo they want. Both Blue Label and Red Label Karo are equally valuable in genuine nutritive elements.

Handlers of Food Stuffs May Have to Submit to Exams; Health Board Meets

Enforcement of the state law requiring periodic examinations of all handlers of food supplies in Portsmouth was urged by the Health department of the Bureau of Community Service in a communication directed to the City Health Board and read at its regular meeting Monday afternoon.

The bureau points out that its public health clinic records show that eleven persons employed in restaurants, etc., were suffering from a contagious disease, and in the opinion of clinic officials, this only represents a small portion of the cases actually existing among food handlers of the city. Action on the petition was deferred until Edward James, state dairy and food inspector, who was in the city several days last week inspecting restaurants, returns and appears before the board to tell just what the state department is doing in respect to enforcing the law in regard to food handlers.

Robert C. Calvert presided over the meeting and the only other business considered was allowing the monthly schedule, amounting to $399.25 and the reading and filing of reports, which were as follows: contagious diseases reported to Dr. O. D. Taaffe, health commissioner—diphtheria, 1; small pox, 1; scarlet fever, 3; whooping cough, 1; and venereal diseases, 3.

Report of Dr. T. C. Crawford, city physician—house visits, 100; office visits, 31; cases confinement, 2; and vaccinations, 7.

William West, plumbing inspector, reported collections of $202 for the month of March, made 171 inspections, investigated 86 complaints and issued 11 permits, in addition to assisting Edwin James, state inspector, in making an inspection of restaurants of the city.

Fascisti Gain Victory In Italian Elections

ROME, April 8.—With two-thirds of the total election results now available, an overwhelming victory for the Fascisti is assured. There now only remains to be seen what seats candidates on the opposition tickets have obtained.

In the north, the stronghold of former Premier Giolitti, which is neutral rather than opposition, it is apparent that Giolitti and his principal lieutenants are elected while in the south the official opposition, headed by Giovanni Amendola, got a limited amount of success.

This Gas Good Not Only For Motors But Acts As Appetizer

ST. LOUIS, April 8.—Ethyl gasoline, a recently discovered product of the General Motor Corporation, will not only eliminate all kinds of "knock" from high compression motors, but serves as an excellent appetizer for those who handle it, according to Thos. Midgley, vice president of the corporation who addressed members of the National Petroleum Marketers Association at the first day's session of their four-day convention here today.

Midgley made no claim for increased mileage through the use of ethyl gasoline, but insisted that the new fluid permitted more efficient operation of gasoline driven vehicles.

Persons handling the fluid as an appetizer, Midgley pointed out, after a preliminary period of nausea and depression, develop great appetites and often gain in weight 25 to 35 pounds. The outcome of the new gasoline was the result of an exhaustive research involving the study of some 25,000 chemists, Midgley said.

Police Chief Removed After 25 Years Service

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, April 8.—Chief of Police R. E. O'Brien and Sergeant Norton were dropped from the local police force in a reorganization of the department made by city commissioners here today. O'Brien has been head of the department for the past 25 years.

City Manager R. W. Clark becomes head of the police department and a secretary to Clark is to be appointed to handle the police records which have been in charge of Norton.

The dismissal of O'Brien was made through a revamping of the ordinance covering the police department, and abolishing the chief of police.

Ever since the new administration went into office January 1, O'Brien has been under fire and several complaints have been made to commissioners of the laxity of law enforcement.

Steubenville Faces Acute Water Shortage

STEUBENVILLE, Ohio, April 8.—Without water since yesterday, because of breakdowns in the water works, Steubenville today faced the worst shortage in history. The fire department relied on chemicals to fight several blazes. No relief is promised before late today, and it is feared that if the shortage continues disease will spread.

Residents took advantage of a heavy rain this afternoon to fill tubs and buckets after having been forced to carry water from the city's pumps and six public wells.

Sally Peck, employee of the Fair Deal Five and Ten, quarrels with her policeman sweetheart, Michael Curtis. That night Sally goes into the yard to take down a washing for Mr. Brennan, with whom she lives. A crash shakes the earth and something strikes Sally a blow on the head.

A FEELING OF SECURITY

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder medicine.

The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything.

It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. One sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Advertisement.

I think I've run away somebody might recognize me and write back and tell 'em. Yesterday I thought maybe I'd like to go home but now I've made up my mind that I don't ever want to hit that burg or meet anybody in it again."

"Why?" Sloat began but Sally interrupted with a grin.

"If I ain't asking questions I ain't answering them, Mr. Sloat!"

She closed the door behind her and as in the morning found Fitch loitering at the stables' head. Sally gestured toward the room she had just left.

"See if you can listen in and get a line on what they're talkin' about in there!" she whispered. "Then bring a cup of tea or something to my room, and give me the dope on it."

"Get you?" He nodded and glided past her while she shut herself in her bedroom and going to the window drew aside the curtains and rested her throbbing forehead against the window pane.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a special formula of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming it Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. You will know them by their olive color.

Today, however, women workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisons matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, now look, don't feel bad, you're not alone.

A listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a week and you'll be surprised.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the successful substitute for calomel—and then just to keep fit. Inc. and Soc. Advertisements.

I had been a match for them, after all! She had demanded twice the sum they offered to convince them of her willingness to enter into their scheme and her confidence that they would keep to their agreement. The other conditions which she had made; her desire to meet no one unnecessary to their plan and to go nowhere about the city were just hints which she had thrown out for them to think over later when she succeeded in making them doubt her true identity and be willing to be rid of her and buy her silence at any price. Sally knew she would have to bring things to a crisis without delay for there was hourly danger that the real "Diamond Bess" might be caught but she could think of no other way to escape from them.

The warm sunshine of that Sunday afternoon had filled the Avenue beneath her window with a stream of cars from curb to curb and the girl gazed idly down upon them for some little time before it was borne in upon her that a certain powerfully-looking gray roadster had passed and repassed the house of such brief intervals that it could only have gone around the block, and that its horse-headed driver was staring up at her window and seemed to be making motions to her. It was the man on horseback of the previous day!

With the conviction of this there came the swift intuition that he wasn't just some guy trying to get fresh; he was waiting, signaling to the girl who should have been in that window, the real Alva Copeland! Sally drew back hastily but not before, almost without her own volition, she had made a little gesture of denial.

Would he drive back again? The western sun was glaring straight upon her window turning the glass to a blurred, dazzling expanse and doubting that he could distinguish her features she tried with all her strength to raise the sash but it had evidently been fastened with a purpose. For all her practicability Sally's romantic heart had led her straight to the solution of the man's constant reappearance before the house and if he were the real Alva Copeland's sweetheart she meant that he should know of his substitution.

The minutes lengthened with no further sign of the gray car and at last a low, insistent tapping at the door made her turn to admit Fitch. That excellently trained footman's eyes were fairly bulging from his head and the tea-tray clattered slightly as he set it down upon the little table.

"So that's the game, is it?" he whispered hoarsely.

"Fifty thousand they're going to give you! They've decided on it! Who're you double-crossing, them or the chief?"

Sally grimmed.

"Neither one, Fitch. I gotta lay low for awhile anyhow, ya'nt I?—this is, if I'm who you think I am!"

"There's no good stallin' with me, Bess!" He glanced behind him and then advanced to pour the tea. "You know you can't get away with this even if you was working under the chief's orders, which you're not. They're leery of you already in there, at least Sloat is; says your lingo is more like a crook's than a shop-girl's and he's all for having you looked up more thorough in that town where the wreck happened but the old lady and the solicitor chap won't hear of it. You're a game one, I'll say that for you. Call it laying low to stick about here with the Delapiero woman herself in the very house yesterday?"

"What's it to you?" Sally shrugged.

"You stick to your job and I'll stick to mine. What are you butting in for?"

"Why?" Sloat began but Sally interrupted with a grin.

"If I ain't asking questions I ain't answering them, Mr. Sloat!"

She closed the door behind her and as in the morning found Fitch loitering at the stables' head. Sally gestured toward the room she had just left.

"See if you can listen in and get a line on what they're talkin' about in there!" she whispered. "Then bring a cup of tea or something to my room, and give me the dope on it."

"Get you?" He nodded and glided past her while she shut herself in her bedroom and going to the window drew aside the curtains and rested her throbbing forehead against the window pane.

"YOU MAY GO, FITCH!" THE LATENT TONES WERE COLD.

"Because," he bent suddenly over her chair, "I'm fair gone on you, Bess! The others told me about you but strike me pink if I thought you was half as pretty as you are. An easy birth, fifty thou and a quick get-away may look good to you but you'd never be able to put it over on the chief, to say nothing of those four sparklers! I saw Chicago Molly after she'd tried to hold out on him in that little matter of the Morgenthal bonds and he'd turned fair sick, I did, though I ain't the squeamish kind! I couldn't a-hear to see it come to you!"

Fitch stiffened all at once and his face took on its habitual wooden expression for the door at the end of the hall had opened without the single warning of a footfall and silver draperies trailed toward them.

"This is very nice, thank you," Sally remarked composedly. "Please tell Mrs.—my mother that I've had my tell if she asks."

"Very good, miss," Fitch turned and then paused as Mrs. Copeland swept in at the open doorway.

"You may go, Fitch." The latenter tones were coldly austere and then as the pseudo-footman obeyed she turned to the girl. "If you wanted your tea, don't you know that it would have been the proper thing for you to ring for Theresa?"

Sally turned wide eyes upon her.

"Did you ring twice, if you mean pushing that button thing there, Mrs. Copeland? I forgot all about the little silver bell. That walter or whatever you call him was passing along the hall and I asked him to bring me a cup of tea. I didn't think you'd mind," she added penitently. "Seems to me I got more to learn about this job every time I turn around!"

"Well, we won't discuss it now."

Mrs. Copeland's tone had softened and she seated herself on the chaise longue. "My dear, we have decided to accept your terms! From now on you are to be my stepdaughter Alva."

"They're on!—I mean, I'll do it, Mrs. Copeland!" Sally amended hastily.

"I'll do my best to get away with it and I'll be dead on the level with you. That's all I can say."

"It is sufficient—Alva." Mrs. Copeland beamed graciously and opened a small, flat leather case which she carried. "I promised you some jewels suitable for your age and position, and these are the first!"

Sally stifled the quick beating of her heart as she eyed the single strand of small, perfectly matched pearls but her eyes shone as she raised them one more to those of the older woman while she endeavored to keep her voice calmly practical.

"They're pretty, all right, and I suppose they're the real thing but ain't they kind of dinky and five-and-ten for swell society? I thought you meant something big—diamonds, maybe."

She held her breath, reading Mrs. Copeland's look of disgust at her seeming avarice, but the other's tone was resigned as she took the pearls from the case and held them out.

"Not for young girls, and these are very valuable. I am sorry you don't like them but let me put them about your neck. There! See how becoming they are!"

Sally murmured half-abashed

thanks and then added determinedly:

"There's one big diamond I'll have anyway, isn't there? When is Cousin Wheeler coming across?"

"Wheeler?" Mrs. Copeland appeared puzzled.

"Sure!" Sally nodded. "I may not know much about society but I'm wise to engagement rings, all right, and if I've got to keep steady company with him I think I ought to have the whole works."

Mrs. Copeland rose with an air of exasperation.

"Come!" she exclaimed. "I will repeat your suggestion to him."

"Bells was still in the sitting room with young Sloat and the two appeared to have been engaged in an argument which had been slightly heated on the younger man's part but it ceased abruptly on their entrance.

Raided!

IN her dreams Gina re-lives that dreadful episode over and over again and awakens with a scream of mortal terror—the evil face of Moy Tao leering through opium fumes—the thunder of axes against iron-studded doors—the arrest—the staring, jeering crowd.

And later, the taxi ride in the cold grey dawn—the sip of brandy to help quiet her nerves—oblivion—and the terrible, terrible awakening.

"Poppies on Beacon Hill" in True Story Magazine for May is the story of an unsophisticated girl. She was not bad, not even weak—just ignorant of life. What happened to her might as easily happen to any boy or girl sent out into the world unprepared to cope with life. She eagerly sought a taste of life and like so many others, drank too deep. She paid as thousands of others pay.

Until five years ago there was no where one could safely turn to get a knowledge of the rules of life. Experience was the only teacher.

Then came True Story, a magazine that is different from any other published. It treats life's problems fearlessly, honestly and in a manner that can give offense to none.

Already it has saved from wreck and ruin the lives of thousands who theretofore had walked in darkness.

"The Broken Wedding Ring." Had Joan been willing to put herself out a little to please her husband, Helen Dell would never have received Bruce's phone message asking if he might call that night. If every young man and woman could read this story many a marriage that would otherwise end unhappily would be a glorious success.

"Can a Woman Come Back?" This girl mistook infatuation for love and married a man whom she should have known better. He could have forced her, if he had been strong enough, to marry him. Could there be an episode for any magazine?

"One evening I began a hunt for my story book. I located it spread open on the bed, a mystery novel that I had never read. I was angry but I think every chum had it down since it had been regular readers since.

"Yes, the stories grip, coming from one's imagination and ready to grip in other people's imaginations.

TO ADDRESS BARACA-PHILATHEA

NEW OPPOSED TO SALARY BOOST OF POSTAL WORKERS

WASHINGTON, April 8.—Postmaster General New today condemned as unwarranted the postal salary increases proposed in bills before Congress and sent to Chairman Edge of the joint sub-committee on postoffices his suggestions for salary increases with recommendations for increased postage and postal service fees to meet such a pay raise.

Pending bills would increase postal expenditures $15,000,000 a year, he said and the state or the national budget would not permit such expenditures. If any bill is passed increasing salaries, the revenues to meet the increases must be raised by increases in postage rates, Mr. New declared. Submitting a lengthy analysis of salaries of postal employees and similar classes of workers in private business, the postmaster general said comparison revealed that the advantage rested with the postal employee.

Proposed Substitute

The salary increases suggested as a substitute by the postmaster general were worked out on scale of an increase of $200 for clerks and carriers of the first class offices having $600,000 annual revenues, and $100 in first class offices having less than $600,000 annual revenues and in all second class offices.

"Starting with these increases there has been an endeavor to readjust other salaries throughout the service accordingly," said Mr. New. "The total amount of increased expenditures which this alternative would carry is approximately $43,000,000."

Would Increase Postage

The increase in postage and fee rates suggested by Mr. New to meet the pay increases, with the various classes of mail and services to which they apply and the estimated increase in revenues are:

Second class matter, $4,055,000 by increasing rates on advertising matter per pound in first and second zones; 1½¢ in third zone and ¼¢ in fourth zone.

Third class matter $500,000 by incorporating in fourth class matter all third class matter above eight ounces.

Fourth class matter $30,100,000, by increasing parcel post rates beginning at nine ounces to and including eighth ounce and on pound rates to and including 70 pounds for local delivery and for first, second and third zones; increasing rates for fourth, fifth, and sixth zones from nine ounces to five pounds and for seventh and eighth zones to four pounds.

Insurance fees $1,750,000 by increasing fee from 3 to 5 cents and 5 to 7 cents, the 10 to 25 cent fees remaining unchanged.

C. O. D. service $1,200,000 by increasing fee from 10 to 12 cents for up to $10, establishing a 15 cent fee for collecting from $10 to $50, and continuing 25 cent fee for $50 and $100.

Registry service $1,100,000 by increasing fee from 10 to 12 cents and changing one cent for return receipt when requested.

Special delivery service $900,000 by increasing fee to 15 cents for articles from two pounds to ten pounds and two cents for articles of ten pounds or more.

Money Order Scale

Money order service $2,761,000 by increases averaging two cents per order, there being slight increases in most instances and decreases in others during this schedule.

Not over $2.50 five cents; over $2.50 and under $5 seven cents; over $5 and under $10 ten cents; over $10 and under $25 twelve cents; over $25 and under $50 fifteen cents; over $50 and under $75 eighteen cents; over $75 and under $100, 25 cents.

SEEKS TO STOP MENACE

CLEVELAND, April 8.—Suit asking that the Ohio Steel company be permanently restrained from dumping phenol in the Cuyahoga River was filed by Arthur E. Kalish, real estate operator, in common pleas court today. The petition declares the city water is polluted, dangerous to health and " unfit to bathe in" because of the phenol. The company has promised completion of a system of purifying its phenol by-products by May.

Congressman Langley Indicted In Kentucky

GOVINGTON, Ky., April 8.—By the A. P.—Congressman John W. Langley, of Kentucky, was indicted by a federal grand jury late today on three counts charging conspiracy to withdraw salt and transport whiskey.

The indictment also named M. E. Huth, and W. B. Carr, of Canton, Ohio, and Albert F. Slater, Hiram W. Brenschutz, and William F. Lipschultz, of Philadelphia, the latter three prohibition officials of Pennsylvania.

The conspiracy charges are based on the alleged illegal withdrawal of 1400 cases of whiskey from a distillery at Lawrenceburg, Ky.

Consideration $32,000

Congressman Langley and the other five men are accused in one count of having conspired to defraud the government of approximately $17,610 by the withdrawal and sale of 1400 cases of whiskey from the H. Belle Anderson distillery, October 3, 1921.

The second count charges the same men with having conspired to sell the liquor for a consideration of $32,000 and the third charges them with having conspired to transport the liquor.

It is set forth further in the indictment that Samuel Collins, prohibition director of Kentucky, had made a rule that no withdrawals of whiskey were to be made from the distilleries in Kentucky on trucks, and that all shipments must be by railroad transportation; that Congressman Langley's part in the conspiracy was to prevail upon Collins to rescind his order so that the whiskey proposed to be withdrawn could be transported out of Kentucky on a truck.

Investigation Wide In Scope

A sweeping investigation into alleged violation of the prohibition law in the eastern district of Kentucky was inaugurated today by the federal grand jury here.

An important witness who will appear before the grand jury is Elias H. Mortimer, New York City, who provided the government with information in connection with the veterans' bureau inquiry which led to the indictment of Col. Charles Forbes, former head of the bureau. It was Mortimer, who, it is said, gave information which causes the indictment of Langley.

WANT $10,000 PROBE FUND

WASHINGTON, April 8.—An additional $10,000 to defray expenses of the investigation by a special house committee into charges against representatives Langley, Kentucky, and Zillman, Maryland, Republicans, was requested in a resolution introduced today by Chairman Burton. The house recently authorized the committee to spend $10,000.

Continuing its inquiry today into charges involving Mr. Zillman, the committee examined witnesses from Baltimore—Charles J. Weggard, former deputy collector of internal revenue, and George W. Rhein, an income tax expert.

SOCIETY

Mrs. Russell Kettler entertained the teachers of the Beginners' and Primary Department of the First Evangelical Sunday School on Monday evening at her home on Gallia street for their regular monthly business meeting. Those present included the Misses Emma Daehler, Elizabeth Bauer, Anna Fastneau, Carrie Egbert and Edna Grotzau.

The following item from the Ohio State Journal will be read with interest as the list of officers named includes Miss Lillian Freund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Freund of Gallia street. Other girls named are also known here:

The organization of Sigma Alpha Sigma, a new professional social service sorority, has been announced at Ohio State university. These officers of the local chapter have been chosen: Miss E. Grace Richmond, 106 West Woodlawn avenue, president; Miss Cecilia Coons, 1064 East Rich street, vice president; Miss Sophie Stromander of Williamson, W. Va., recording secretary; Miss Lillian Freund of Portsmouth, corresponding secretary; Miss Goldie Mary Statford of Rock Creek, treasurer, and Miss Myrtle Marie Cook of Mt. Rainier, Md., custodian. Approval of the organization has been given by the National Conference of Social Work and the American Association of Social Workers, and a compass emblem of the latter association, is featured on the pins of the local sorority. This is said to be the first sorority in any department of social administration and other universities will probably follow Ohio State's example.

Mrs. Frank Dugan, Mrs. John G. Dillon, Mrs. James S. Thomas, Mrs. W. R. Hitchcock and Mrs. Grace L. Goodwin motored to Columbus Saturday to attend the matinee at the Hartman.

Circle 3 of the Ladies' Relief society of the First Evangelical church will meet this afternoon with Mrs. Minnie Clements of Ninth street.

Carl Hauck of Offenes street returned Sunday evening from a week's visit with relatives in Columbus.

U. B. Solicitors Raise Over $12,000 In Drive To Wipe Out Their Church Debt

That team workers of United Brethren church have been busy the past week in soliciting subscriptions to wipe out the church debt of about $23,000 became known last night when the total reported in cash or pledges amounted to $12,288. This represents only 130 of the contributing members of the church which numbers several hundred. The workers were optimistic last night and are confident they will not experience any difficulty in securing the total amount needed to wipe out the debt on the church built at a cost of over $80,000. The present pledges are being taken for a three year period, the subscription reported, charged that after this is out to win over the Church Dads and when the next meeting is held they hope to report figures that will cause the Dads to hustle.

The report session last evening followed a supper served by women of the church.

Suspend Motorcycle Cop

IRONTON, O., April 8.—Bobart F. Daniels, motorcycle policeman, was suspended yesterday by Chief of Police Blackwell, pending an investigation of charges made by a local informant. The complainant, it was chino was stopped by the officer for alleged speeding the latter accepted $15.00 which was intended as cash bail for appearance in court but that the officer then advised them not to show up as their fines would probably exceed the amount. The money, it is charged, was never turned in at the police station. Mr.

Daniels entered a vigorous denial to the charges and it is understood he will stand trial.

"Red" McGahan Enters Penitentiary

COLUMBUS, O., April 8.—(By the Associated Press)—George "Red" McGahan, notorious bank bandit is going to be a model prisoner for "he is well disciplined, knows that he must obey, and will not cause trouble." Warren P. E. Thomas said today following McGahan's reception at the state institution last night to serve a sentence of fifteen years for the holdup of the West Carrollton bank.

McGahan, who was captured in Marietta, tried and convicted in Montgomery county, was brought to the penitentiary under a heavy guard.

While McGahan is eligible for parole in one year, a recommendation in his sentence that "a parole be not granted" will forestall any efforts at release, prison officials said today.

McGahan served eight years of a ten-year sentence in the Ohio penitentiary a number of years ago, being released in 1915. He also served a term in the Ohio Reformatory.

Terminal Boys Are Royally Entertained; Visited Queen City

On returning home from a visit to the boys department of the Cincinnati Y. M. C. A., the Terminal boys of Portsmouth declared "we had the best two days of our lives." Sponsored by the Boys' Work Secretary E. N. Kaufman of the Terminal Y., twelve Terminal lads, varying in ages from 10 to 18, traveled to Cincinnati last Saturday morning via N. & W. Ry., in the equivalent to a private car, as they were the sole occupants of the rear couch. Associate Boys' Work Secretary William Pettit met the Portsmouth party at the Clancy station and escorted them to the boys department of the Y. where they were greeted by Boys' Work Director Hood and a number of Clancy boys.

The first thing on the program was a shower bath and a dip in the 75 foot pool. This was followed by dinner. In the afternoon, the boys engaged in track events and basketball contests. The River City lads won 12 ribbons in the various events. Roy Maynard broke his own record at the standing broad jump, 5 feet, 1 inch, and Stanley McCracken won the standing broad jump for boys over 110 pounds with a leap of 9 feet, 3 inches.

The Terminal boys did creditable work in the swimming contests. "Red" Deater did remarkable sprinting in the 100 yard dash. Howard Oliver was the chief quantity performer for the Terminal boys in the 25 yd., 50 yd., and fancy diving contests. The boys indulged in scuttle board, cue rounie and ping pong games. A movie entertainment was provided in the evening and then they all hit the hay in the big gym. After a few pillow battles the lads entered slumberland. Deater being the first to score and snore in the somnambulistic slants.

In the morning, the Clancy boys, who were the napping companions of the Terminal lads slept so "loud" they had to be calmed by the night watchmen.

Secretary Hood gave a very interesting talk on "Clean Sports" at the supper table on Saturday evening, at which time he presented the ribbons to the winners of the contests.

On Sunday the group visited the Church of the Covenant Presbyterian Sunday School and attended church services. Attorney Beebe taught the class the boys attended. At 2 p.m. the boys attended the meeting in the lobby. After a brief rest period they went to the Zoo and enjoyed a good session in natural history.

The party boarded the 8:20 p.m. train at Cincinnati for Portsmouth and all were unanimous in that it was "the end of two perfect days."

The following boys made the trip: Roy Maynard, Harry Boyd, Claude Bourne, Harry Bourne, James Bryan, Lewis Stitt, C. Ellis Stitt, Harry Hunt, Howard Oliver, Stanley McCracken, Howard Sharp, Edward Deater and E. M. Kaufman.

Boys' League Will Enjoy Real Banquet

The winners of the East End Boys' Basketball league championship teams will be "banqueted and trophied" at the Calvary Baptist church, 1418 Hotchkiss street, Thursday evening, April 10, at 6:30 o'clock. The ladies' committee of the church is preparing a sumptuous feast and the banquet committee has outlined an excellent program which will be both entertaining and instructive to all who attend.

The members of the 15 boys' teams in both senior and junior divisions are expected to be on hand and like all good sports, cheer and congratulate the winning gladiators.

The girls' division will also be represented and add to the festivities. The Terminal Spiders, champions of the girls' division, will receive a handsome loving cup. The winners of the boys' division will also receive loving cups. The "best boys" and "most useful players" to the league in each division will also be awarded a handsome loving cup.

F. B. McComb, coach of Portsmouth High school, will be the toastmaster. Music will be furnished by a good orchestra, and C. C. Bennett's Orpheus quartet, vocal solos by Donald Elwell, J. H. Finney will be the principal speaker.

Among the invited guests are Hon. Ralph Covert, mayor of Portsmouth; John J. Dudley, general secretary; Terminals Y. M. C. A.; L. T. Henderson, Boy Scout executive; Rev. R. S. Balsiger, Rev. P. A. Gross, Rev. L. N. Kaysor and Rev. Charles Reinhard.

Any boy or girl, whether affiliated with the East End League or not, may purchase tickets to attend the banquet and will receive a cordial welcome.

Edward was picked up by Officer Gee in the East End this morning for loitering and when brought to the police station it was found that he had run away from home last Friday. He told Chief Arthur that he had started out with fifty cents in his pocket and that he had bummed rides from Parma, near Cleveland, to Portsmouth. The first part of his trip took him to Wooster, where he says he slept in the woods, from Wooster he came to Columbus and then to Chillicothe and Portsmouth. He was picked up in Chillicothe last night for loitering and spent the night in the Chillicothe lock-up. The boy claimed that he had not walked more than three miles during the whole trip and had been given rides by tourists.

Pay To Put Your Own Ideas Across In stead of Waiting To Pay For Another Person's Suggestions, Speaker Tells Merchants

Stressing the value of using the services of a soundly organized and centralized credit rating bureau and organization, Jim Morton, field secretary of the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants, and former secretary of the Lucas Chamber of Commerce, brought to members and guests of the Portsmouth Retail Merchants' Association last night one of the most interesting messages the local merchants have had the pleasure of hearing since it was organized some months ago. The meeting held at the Elks Club following a chicken dinner at six o'clock was attended by about 50. Members of the Association invited other merchants who are not enrolled as members.

Mr. Morton has a state-wide reputation as a leader in business and civic improvement organizations, and his message was more of a heart-to-heart talk with the merchants. He brought to the local men a message of facts he had experienced in his work and passed them on for the good of the organization. The credit bureau maintained by local business men, he pointed out, will in the end lower overhead and operating costs by eliminating abuse of the credit privilege. This saving can then be passed on to purchasers who reciprocate the courtesy of credit with the courtesy of prompt payment, Mr. Morton said.

The movement to improve the understanding and use of credit in local establishments, the speaker intended to make sure that every purchaser knows why he pays more for a similar product of another grade, and to extend the idea of collective service of great value to the public.

Passing to the matter of advertising, Mr. Morton pleaded for a more general use of established and standard advertising mediums, coupled with elimination of all other advertising of lesser or questionable value. Authentic publications and directories covering the trade field in which it is wished to advertise, are the mediums to be used," he said, "but promotion schemes which involve incomplete directories and 'fly-by-night' publications, should be eliminated." Any person soliciting advertising for a questionable publication should be immediately reported to the Association for protection of other members, the speaker urged.

Another idea brought to Portsmouth by the speaker, and enthusiastically adopted, is establishment of a subsidiary association among store employees, to assure co-operation in each store to the credit system of the parent body. This second association will be formed with the Retail Merchants' Association before a license is issued permitting their sale."

Mr. Morton pointed out how the improvements in business methods, sponsored by the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, the national organization with which it is affiliated, and the member Associations, are benefiting Portsmouth buyers and those in other cities were adopted. Much of the reason for better conditions in Ohio, he asserted, is that Ohio is the most thoroughly organized state in the Union, from the standpoint of merchandising associations. It is the only state which has a strong central organization heading the efforts of local Associations.

In closing, Mr. Morton urged that merchants work out ideas for organization activity for adoption at local stores, and submit them to the offices of the Portsmouth Association. "Pay to put your own ideas across, instead of waiting to pay for another person's suggestions."

Four Weeks After Being Introduced Here Pepgen Is Endorsed By Hundreds

Mr. J. E. Young, who is now at Fisher & Streich's Pharmacy, corner Sixth and Chillicothe streets, introducing his medicine Pepgen, is now receiving written and verbal endorsements from hundreds of well known people living in Portsmouth and surrounding towns as to the wonderful results they have obtained through the use of this famous medicine.

"The demand for Pepgen is increasing not only in Portsmouth, but throughout the United States," said Mr. J. Young, today, to a representative of the Times.

"The people of Portsmouth were, realized at first, somewhat doubtful as to the power of Pepgen to relieve stomach, liver and kidney troubles. The most doubtful have now been convinced.

"This has been accomplished, not by anything I have done or said, but solely by the convincing endorsements of Pepgen given me by many well known local citizens. These Portsmouth people have by actual experience been convinced of the real efficiency of Pepgen. Their statements can easily be verified by anyone caring to make an investigation.

"CAUTION—The genuine Pepgen is packed in a white and blue carton and may be obtained in Portsmouth only at Fisher & Streich's Pharmacy, real co-operation of the person taking advertisement.

Grange News

Scio Valley Grange No. 722 will meet Saturday evening April 12th. The contest for new members is very close as both groups are working hard.

At the second meeting in March the members of the Grange divided in two groups according to their birthdays. Those born in the even months of the year are in one group and those born in the odd months are in one group. The losing side is to banquet the winning side some time in May.

A well arranged program has been prepared by the Worthy Lecture. All members are urged to be present as important business will be transacted. Refreshments will be served by group two.

Musical Comedy Is Booked

One of the best musical comedies on the road this season is to be heard in Portsmouth Wednesday, April 23, when "My China Doll" plays here under the auspices of the Baci Britts. The comedy is set in two acts and six scenes with plenty of variety in costumes. The company which is to play in Portsmouth has received splendid support and praise in Ashland, Huntington, Wheeling, Youngstown and other cities; in some cases rivalling the popular "Blossom Time" in enthusiasm which it aroused. The advance man for the company was in town today making final arrangements with the members of the local lodge.

Is Geraldine Farrar Right, Girls?

"The American girl is the best-tressed, best-gloved, best-lifted girl in the globe," says Geraldine Farrar, the versatile American prima donna who comes to the Columbia theatre April 22. But then the famous "Gerry" bands the American girl a bit of criticism when she comes. "But watch her any sunny afternoon on the principal streets of our big cities. From her face would seem to have been muzzled any damaging mobility of expression. How about it, girls? Is she right? Is the American girl afraid to show emotion?"

of justice in Washington, although the local investigators believed the case should be pressed.

Armstrong said he and other agents had seized eighteen half barrels of three per cent beer from the brewery and recommended prosecution. W. O. Potter, United States attorney at East St. Louis, the witness said, told him that he had instructions from the department to drop the case, and that was done.

It was stated by the secretary of the brewery company at the time, Armstrong added, that "$5,000 offer in settlement" had been accepted by the government.

The witness told also of failures to prosecute in the Garden City brewery case and of efforts made to remove him as enforcement agent because he would not "stop buying" liquor at saloons, "they did not want to be prosecuted."

Armstrong estimated that he had reported on "1,000 to 1,500" cases but never had been called as a witness in a criminal case until six months ago. The cases for the most part went through with "small fines" the witness said.

Asked who the federal prosecutor was in these cases, Armstrong said that United States District Attorney Clyne at Chicago, a Democratic holdover, was in office most of the time. He expressed the opinion that Clyne had been kept in by the Republican administration because the Chicago brewery ring "felt they could handle Charlie Clyne."

Speaking of injunction proceedings handled by Special Assistant Attorney General Middlekauf, and his assistant, August Kruz, Armstrong said, they had conducted the case so as to delay service long enough to let the original owners "get out."

The witness declared there were delays of two or three years in "closing up" these cases. He had recently been called as a witness in three-year-old cases "which he had almost forgotten," he added.

The Garden City brewery case, he said, was handled by Middlekauf. Armstrong said that in November, 1922, Charles Kemp, his superior in the prohibition service told him he was to be removed, adding that Homer K. Gulpin, a Cook county Republican peer, said "I was making too many arrests."

He made an arrangement, he said, by which I was then kept in service from month to month, but only provided that they knew in advance which saloon I was to enter."

Armstrong said he was "informed" Clyne had been forced out by pressure of the Illinois Bar Association.

Paul Howland, of counsel for Harry M. Daugherty, interjected that Clyne had been allowed to remain until his term expired in 1924.

The witness then described how he had caught Ernest Fontana, a bootlegger, in 1921, with 10 barrels of whiskey. The case against him went through several assistant attorneys' hands. Fontana was finally fined $250 which he never paid, Armstrong said.

"All of these cases were brought to the attention of the department of justice at one time or another, were they not?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"They were."

Senator Wheeler took up the Volstead Drug Company case and asked Armstrong if he had been offered a bribe in that case. "I didn't get far enough into it for that," Armstrong said. Armstrong said there had been enough wine released "for sacramental purposes" in Illinois to flood the state. He told of a case at Joliet, where a fellow agent shot him. "It claimed to have lost his head," Armstrong said.

"But he really shot to get rid of you?" asked Senator Wheeler.

"I will always believe so," On cross-examination Armstrong said administration of law in Chicago had "improved wonderfully under United States Attorney Olsen, but there was still lots of room for improvement."

Olsen succeeded Clyne.

As to the department of justice policy in prohibition enforcement, Armstrong said there were "spots" over the country where there should be a change. He said that Mrs. Mabel Walker Willibrand in charge of this work in the department had said in his presence within the past three weeks, that she was consulted on such cases as "they" wanted to take up. The witness did not elaborate this statement.

The bootleggers, the witness said, "are non-partisan." They vote for the fellows that can deliver," he said. "It is not confined to the Republican party."

SOCIETY

An announcement that will come as a surprise to the many friends of the bride, is that of the marriage of Miss Virginia James, attractive young daughter of Mrs. Anna James of 912 Front street, and Mr. Lee Rosenthal, which took place in Wheeling, W. Va., on Saturday, January 5th. The young couple have succeeded in keeping their marriage a secret until a few days ago when the bride arrived from home folks. Mrs. Rosenthal was a former student nurse at the Schirmer Hospital and later entered a training school for nurses in Indianapolis. For the past six months she has been employed as a telephone operator in Charleston, W. Va.

Mr. Rosenthal comes from a prominent family in Pittsburgh, Pa., and is at present on the road as a traveling salesman. His bride will remain here for an extended visit with her mother and later they will take up their residence either in Pittsburgh or Cincinnati.

The First Baptist choir will meet for practice tomorrow evening at 7:15 o'clock in the parsonage instead of on Friday evening. The change is made on account of the Bureau celebration on Friday evening.

PRICES STEADY ON WALL STREET FOLLOWING SELLING FLURRY

NEW YORK. April 8.—Mixed price movements characterized today's dull stock market.

Early reactionary tendencies were checked somewhat following the presentation of the senate tax bill, closing prices showing a curious mixture of gains and losses. The close was irregular. Sales approximated $600,000.

PRICES ON GRAIN MARKET EASIER

CHICAGO, April 8.—Favorable weather for wheat seeding in the northwest tended to ease down wheat prices today during the early dealings. In addition, there was no evidence of any export demand of consequence. Selling however except from the northwest, was lacking in volume.

Opening prices which ranged from 16 1/2 to 70 1/2, each at new minimum prices for the year: Davison, Chehalie, South Porto Rican sugar and Willys-Oversland preferred, extended their price gains to two points or more. Louisville and Nashville and Texas and Pacific each moved up about a point, the former touching a new top at 93 1/2. American Water Works issued continued strong, the common extending its early gain to 2 1/2 points and the 7 per cent preferred climbing one, each at their best prices of the year. Call Money opened at 5 per cent.

The close was unsighted, 1/2 to 3/4 net lower, May 1.02 1/2 to 1.02 1/2@ 1/2 and July 1.03 1/2 to 1.03 1/2@ 1/2.

OBITUARY

Miss Mildred Waller.

Just in the bloom of life Miss Mildred Waller, one of the best known young women of the city's younger set, was called to that Great Beyond of everlasting repose, when the final summons came this morning about three o'clock at Mercy hospital, where she underwent an operation for appendicitis last Friday evening about six o'clock. She went to the hospital just a short time before entering the operating room. Miss Waller rallied from the ordeal, but Sunday her condition took a decided change for the worse. On Monday, however, she appeared slightly better and hopes were held for her recovery.

Late Monday she suffered another collapse which ended with the final call coming this morning. News of the passing of this splendid young woman comes as a shock to her wide circle of friends and those who knew the family so well at McDermott and Rardon, their former home.

Miss Mildred Waller was born at Rardon May 16, 1898, a daughter of Clark and Eva Wamsley Waller. When Miss Waller was six years of age the family moved to McDermott and resided there for ten years before they moved to Portsmouth, about four years ago. Miss Waller attended the village school, but finished her education in the Portsmouth public schools, being a member of the 1916 graduating class of Portsmouth High School.

For about a year after completing her high school course she was employed in the office of the Waller Bros. Stone Company at McDermott. For the past three years she had been employed as stenographer and clerk at the Security Bank where she made many friends.

Besides her grief stricken parents, Miss Waller is survived by one brother, Paul V. Waller, who has been attending the University of New York for the past two years. Mr. Waller arrived home last evening.

Miss Waller was a member of Second Presbyterian church and Sunday School. She was also a member of several church clubs and like organizations formed by groups of young women friends.

Irvin Franklin Rose

Word was received here Tuesday conveying news of the death of Irvin F. Rose, a well known printer, who passed away at the home of an aunt in Indianapolis. He was for years an honored resident of this city and was formerly employed in the Times composing room and later was employed in the printing department of the Selby shoe plant. Before leaving Portsmouth last December, Mr. Rose, who had many friends here, resided at Eighteenth and Waller. The body will arrive here Wednesday noon and will be taken to the Windle funeral parlors on Offner street.

The funeral services will be held there at 2 p.m. Interment will be in Greenlawn.

Mr. Rose, who was 55 years old, was born in Thorntown, Ind., and he came to Portsmouth when a young man and later married Miss Margaret Burnside of this city, who passed away five years ago.

Mark A. Smith.

Death came Wednesday morning at 5 o'clock and put an end to the suffering of Mark A. Smith, well known farmer of the Otway community. Mr. Smith died from a complication of diseases from which he had suffered for about eight weeks.

Mark A. Smith was born in Brown county, March 10, 1883 and died April 2, 1924, aged 41 years, 22 days. He was the son of Henson and Maggie Smith. When he was two years old the family moved to Adams county and later to Scioto county, where most of his life had been spent. He was married in 1905 to Gabrielle Lawson. To this union were born two children, Clyde, age 17 and Ruby, age 11. Besides his family he is survived by two brothers, Fred and Robert of Rocky Fork, and one sister, Anna Daulton.

Mr. Smith was a member of Smith Lodge, Knights of Pythias No. 387 at Otway, having joined this order in 1917. He was a Christian and had endeared himself to the hearts of all who knew him by spreading sunshine and good cheer not only by words but by deeds of kindness and helpfulness.

In his passing the family has lost a devoted husband and father, the lodge a worthy member and the community a highly respected citizen.

Funeral services were held at Berea Chapel Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

They were compelled to respond to many encores last night and it looks like another big week at the Columbian.

Reuben Smith

Reuben Smith, formerly of this city, died in Peoples' Hospital, Chicago, March 21, of complications. He had been in poor health for some time. He leaves his mother, of Holland, Michigan, to mourn his death, also the following Portsmouth relatives: Seldon and Curtis Ingalls, Mrs. Lowell Dixon and Mrs. Maggie O'Meara. The remains were taken to Kentucky, to the old home, for burial. He will be buried in Portsmouth and other towns where he had lived.

When the war broke out he was quick to answer the call to the colors, joined the navy and was in training in Norfolk, Virginia. He made four trips to France. He was honorably discharged and later joined the shipping board at New York, and made two trips to South America. His health failed and although he had the best of care in many sanatoriums and hospitals he never fully rallied.

"Man goeth to his long home, and the mourners go about the streets."

Ella S. Evans

After an illness of complications for many years, Ella S. Evans, quietly passed away Monday evening at 7:30 in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Dressler, 717 North street, where he made his home. Mr. Evans was the son of the Rev. Elijah and Nancy Evans and was born February 4, 1885 at Buena Vista, being 39 years and two months of age at the time of his death.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. on Saturday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Dressler, 717 North street.

THE NATIONAL PLAYGROUND

THAT is the name that Florida is arrogating to herself. It is somewhat of a misnomer. Thousands veritably, hundreds of thousands of people flock to the state every winter.

The overwhelming masses of them do not go there, however, to play; they go mainly to escape the rigors of the northern climate and to buy lots.

Just returning from there we are an enthusiast in the idea of "See America First." No man can know America until he has seen Florida, nor can he have full pride there, in until he has seen Miami.

Miami calls herself "the Magic City," seeking therein to exploit her rapid growth. A much more apt designation would be the Wonder City, or yet the Beautiful City. Other cities have developed as rapidly as she has, several have even surpassed her in that respect. Absolutely none approach her in loveliness.

As our traveling companion so well said at first sight of it makes one feel as though he were gazing upon the handiwork of the fairies of childhood.

And Miami herself believes the fairies are a reality. She sees herself a city of a half million a decade hence. We know not if this spell will be wrought, but Miami herself surely has no doubt of it for she is building as would a city of a million in her hand. She is putting up many a noble structure that will be unrivaled elsewhere and proceeds as though she expects the golden tide to flow down from beyond Mason and Dixon's line forever.

Let it not be assumed, however, that Miami is the only town in Florida. There are many other pretty and prosperous places such as Melbourne, Fort Pierce, West Palm Beach, Daytona, Ormond, Orlando, Port Meyers and yet others of lesser note, all expanding in a breath taking sort of a way and all dreaming their dreams of future greatness and what is more, each and every one striving with might and main to make them come true.

The one to most boldly set herself up, however, as a rival and dispute Miami's place is St. Petersburg, a fine town, but in size and appearance not vieing strongly. In development, however, it does compete in no insignificant degree. Vast projects are under way there, projects that would be tremendously amazing if one had not seen Miami first. Two points where the two run neck and neck is in the extraordinary number and size of additions and the price of realty. Each one has enough lots to house a population of eleven million and besides unlimited room to expand and the boasted water fronts world without end; also each one shows you gold is cheaper than dirt. Anywhere on either "Main street" lots sell for $4,500 a front foot up and are offered as bargains at that. Miami is about the same size as Portsmouth, St. Petersburg isn't half as big.

From the middle of January to the middle of March Florida is overrun with visitors from the other states. No matter where you go the hotels and boarding houses are overflowing with them, though the big crowds are at Miami and St. Petersburg. This is the main impulse in the state's prosperity. Her agricultural interests are in the slough of despond. Tomatoes seem to be the only paying crop. Cereals are not raised at all and millions of bushels of oranges and grapefruit are not even being gathered. One of the saddest sides is to see the golden waste rotting on the ground. Owners would be glad to sell oranges or grapefruit for ten cents a bushel if the buyer would do the gathering.

Yet, in ten years fruits will be Florida's mainstay and her marvelous prosperity. In that time the airplane will be developed into a regular and reliable freight carrier. In the morning luscious berries, oranges, grapefruit, bananas will be plucked from her fertile deltas and be on sale in Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia, New York and Boston in the afternoon.

The future seems to move about as fast as we do.

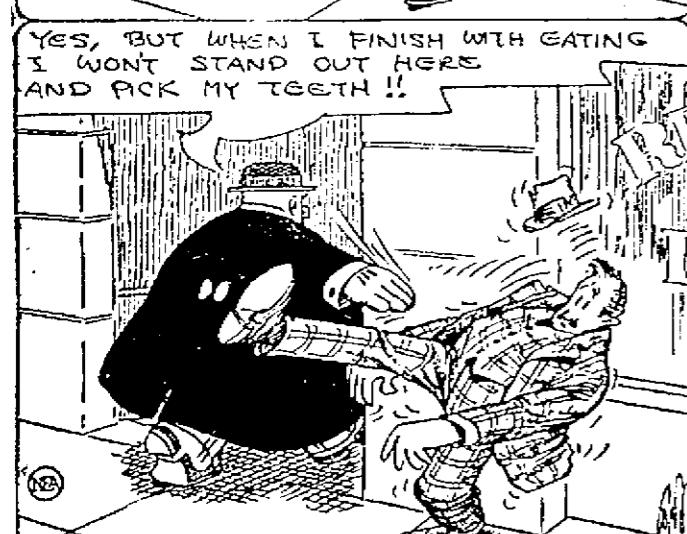

When two live cheaper than one they feel that way.

The man of the hour takes care of the minutes.

Only things most amateur gardeners raise are hopes.

NEW YORK DAY-BY-DAY

BY O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, April 8.—The hordes of the philanthropic Mills Hotels sit in the evening with assortments of humanity. They creep in with the dusk and sit about, puffing at their pipes, reading current magazines and keeping very quiet.

How are men who talk very little and when they do it is with a sort of dull, sad murmur. There are peddlers, silver-haired quick lunch cashiers, a few broken-down charmers, doormen, curb merchants and house-to-house canvassers.

There is a clouded lustre to many of their lives. They have tasted success and failure and have become drifters—rolling along there over the earth. By 10 o'clock most of them sink away to their rooms to lose themselves in sleep if they can.

Few retain their original names. They are mostly Smiths and Joneses. They have in many instances families from whom they are separated. The future is opaque and they do not seem to care. Perhaps they feel that in the hereafter there will be plenty of time to have a good time.

A cheer for the traffic cop at Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth street. A ragged little urchin of the East Side with a ransacked push-wagon which held his equally ragged little sister was attempting to cross the avenue. The traffic signals were for avenue right of way but the cop stopped a flock of fine limousines and gallantly waved to the push wagon to cross over.

New York is preparing to become a greater sardine city than ever with the coming of the national political convention. Hotels will pack ten in a room, where one sleeps in easier days of congestion. Private homes are to be filled from cellar to garret. Many speculators who take advantage of every opportunity for quick profits are renting all available apartments in the hope they can fill them easily. At their prices they will make money over and above the extra months of rent they will have to pay to retain the space.

The Goods
You've got to have the goods, my boy. If you would finish strong, A blunt may work a little while, But not for very long: A fine of talk all by itself Will seldom see you through; You've got to have the goods, my boy, And nothing else will do.

The Fight
The fight is pretty stiff, my boy. I'd call it rather tough, And all along the route are wrecks Of those who tried to bluff; They couldn't back their lines of talk, To meet the final test; You've got to have the goods, my boy, And that's no idle jest.

Comically Deficient

"I know it. He even fails to see anything funny about a man who will pay $50 to see a prize fight."

Equal to the Occasion

One part of an elevator boy's duty is to answer questions, but not even he can be expected to know everything. A guest at one of the big hotels, while going down in the elevator, remarked: "I want to go to the wharf where the tea was thrown overboard."

"Well," said the boy, looking mystified, "you had better inquire at the office. I reckon that was before I came here. I've been in Boston only about a year."—Boston Transcript.

Splendid Idea
Jones had a terrible toothache and happened to run across an old friend who had just returned from his honeymoon with a young and charming wife. He asked him if he knew of a cure for it.

"Look here, old chap," said his friend, "I had toothache last week. When I went home my wife kissed me and, do you know, it cured it completely. Why don't you try it?"

"That's splendid idea," said Jones. "Is your wife at home now?"

He Sure Was
"My friend," asked the missionary, "are you traveling the straight and narrow path?"

In silence the man handed over his card, which read: "Signor Battaglio, Tightrope Walker."
